A LIBRARY BUILDING FOR A MEMORIAL

Mayking, Ky.
Sept. 9, 1947.

Dear Readers:

It is a splendid thing that we can have the Eagle to express our ideas and discuss matters that pertain to us all and go to the upbuilding of our country, and there has been a matter on my heart for a long time that I will now mention to you which I think is of great importance to us all. There is no Memorial in our country that is permanent to the memory of the boys who made that final sacrifice on the fields of battle, and who gave all for us and our flag and country—isn't it fitting that we who today enjoy this great free country, who carry on, that we should leave permanently some kind of a Memorial to their memory. If it is not done now, we cannot expect the next generation to do that when feelings and thoughts and memory has to a great extent passed, it is up to us, those that live today to do this. I have been thinking of a Library building on our High School Hill built and dedicated to the memory of those boys. Whitesburg High School does not have a Library building—they certainly need one—and then that would be permanent and worth something to the present youth and those coming on—Perhaps the American Legion may have something in mind and I am of the opinion that it would be that body that would want to go forward in this great matter—I am only offering this as a suggestion—maybe others have something in mind—but whatever it is it should be done and not further neglected. But, I think a Library building on the High School Hill near and adjacent to the High School building with the names of those boys placed in that building with a plaque showing the purpose of the building would speak to us today and to the youth that enter its walls in the gleaming of knowledge in the years to come—of a memory so precious and so sweet and so lasting.

This is a suggestion. May some one take the lead and move out. Now is the time.

Yours very truly,

—G. BENNETT ADAMS.

The August letting included a $103,044 contract providing for bituminous surfacing of 2,427 miles of the Nicholasville-Lancaster road in Garrard county. The span, reaching from near Camp Nelson toward Lancaster, was graded and drained last year at a cost of $199,820.41.

Other projects contracted for in August included improvement of 2,178 miles of urban roads. These included widening of 1,070 miles of the Lexington-Richmond road, to cost $143,005.75; improvement of bridge and street approaches on the London-Corbin road, beginning at East Main St. in Corbin and extending to and across Lynn Camp Creek; $82,795.54; high type surfacing of 217 miles of Main Street in Hazard, $62,767.30; and surfacing of 728 miles of East Main and Dixon Streets in Providence, $131,459.20.

Of the 82,490 miles of state highway covered in the August letting, 7,271 miles are to be improved with federal aid and 75,811 miles will be improved at a cost to be born entirely by the state, the Commissioner added.

The August contracts also included a rural highway project Jefferson county calling for grading, draining and surfacing of 3,785 miles of road at a cost of $60,111.43.

The War Assets Administration has turned full control of Bowman Field over to the Louisville-Jefferson County Air Board after more than five years of use by the Army Air Forces.

Only Two Toll Bridges Still Operating In Ky.

Frankfort — State Highway Commissioner J. Stephen Watkins said today civic leaders from Kentucky and Indiana will meet with him Tuesday, Sept. 16, to plan a public ceremony for the freeing of the Milton-Madison bridge over the Ohio River, one of the two remaining toll bridges in Kentucky.

"After August tolls are deducted about $23,000 more must be collected before the state can retire the revenue bonds and free the Trimble county span," Mr. Watkins said. The bridge was acquired by the state December 10, 1937, at a cost of $915,000. August receipts from the bridge totaled $15,964.97, according to the Commissioner who added, "Traffic normally decreases during September and it is therefore difficult to anticipate a definite freeing date at this time."

The program planning committee will select speakers for the freeing ceremony which will include band music and brief talks by Mr. Watkins and Governor Simon Willis.

The bridge connecting Milton and Madison on Kentucky highway 37 was constructed as a private enterprise at a reported total cost of $1,365,101.84. The 3,181 foot span was opened to traffic in December 1929. It is one of 19 bridges acquired by the state under the 1929 Murphy Act providing for acquisition by lease of revenue bonds.

Is College Worthwhile

This is a subject many are debating, whether four years spent in a college in the learning of matter that may not be directly related to making a living, is worth what it costs in time and effort.

We think it is for those fitted to receive a college education. Some boys and girls do not have the intelligence to take a college education and there is not much one can do about it. Others are bright and quick but are not students, and it is doubtful whether it is worth it for them.

For a future executive, professional man, or leader in his community, a college education is most essential.

Looking back over our own experience of three and a half years in college, we wonder whether anyone ever started with such little preparation and got so much for the small amount of money expended.

And the enrollment at the colleges was small in comparison with today, about 700 being enrolled, but from that 700 today are governors of states, admirals, generals, bishops, supreme court judges and big business executives. The average ability was high and the competition keen.

One objective of a college training is to teach people to evaluate life. We thought before going to college that money was the answer to everything. We found out that there are many goals more important than the acquisition of money.

The principal objective of any college is to train men and women for responsibility and leadership in the average communities of the nation—doctors, lawyers, bankers, teachers, executives. And in that they do a good job—(Exchange).

The Taft-Hartley Bill

The Hartley-Taft labor bill seems to have been passed by both branches of Congress. Although it is labeled a Republican bill, it seems to have had the support of the majority of the Democrats in Congress. It was vetoed by President Truman with his fingers crossed and hoping that the senate would override him.

There are several reasons for the veto. Drew Pearson, the writer of the Washington Merry Go Round, thinks that the veto had an international angle in that it was designed to counteract Communistic influence in Central Europe. It is the first time that European questions have had any important association with purely domestic legislation.

From a standpoint of domestic politics, the veto is supposed to throw the hooks into Henry Wallace and his ambitions for a third party, or for the support of the Democratic party.

But it is silly to think that all the power of the administration could not change four senate votes upon so important a piece of legislation. The Senate did not override the veto of the tax bill because the administration did not want it. But it did want the senate to override the labor bill.

As to how it will work out, we would not say. It won't be as oppressive on labor as the labor leaders represent and won't cure all the ills of Capital-Labor differences. It will probably be something in between these two extreme points of view.

State Fair Gets Underway Sunday At Louisville

Louisville, Ky., Sept 7 — At 2:00 P. M. Sunday afternoon, Mayor E. Leland Taylor of Louisville, snipped the ceremonial ribbon and declared the 1947 Kentucky State Fair to be officially open. In a brief address to a surprisingly large opening crowd, Mayor Taylor stated that Kentuckians would have every reason to be proud of this year's great State Fair and that the City of Louisville was grateful for the privilege of presenting it.

Following the ceremonies, the Mayor and his party were conducted on a tour of the Fair by Capt. J. R. Rash, President, Kentucky State Fair Board, members of the Board and J. O. Matlick, Fair Manager. The official visitors expressed surprise and pleasure with the size and quality of the various exhibits. They were especially impressed at the re-dedication ceremonies at the old Log Cabin, an authentic replica of pioneer homes in Kentucky. The cabin, built 25 years ago, has been an outstanding feature of the Fair for many years. During the war, however, its furnishings were removed and stored. This year it has been refurnished and many antiques added. The log cabin was officially re-dedicated to the people of Kentucky in memory of their forebears.

Upon completion of their tour, the Mayor and his party occupied their official box in the Grandstand and witnessed one of the best shows ever presented at the Fair. Featured on the program were Hi Yo Silver, the great stallion of Lone Ranger fame, many unusual spectacular aerial acts, amusing novelty acts and the inevitable antics of the clown. The Mayor applauded vigorously the performance of Lamont's Australian Cock, a flock of trained birds that performed amazing feats including quenching fires, ringing bells and many others. The evening performance concluded with a gigantic display of fireworks with aerial bombs and brilliant set pieces.

The size of several State Fair exhibits outstripped any like exhibits of previous Fairs. The display of farm machinery on the Machinery Lot included an amazing number of the newest farm equipment of many of the country's leading manufacturers. Demonstrations of this equipment will be held daily throughout Fair week. Cattle barns at the Fair were filled to capacity with an overflow into tents. Other livestock barns were well filled and many fine animals will enter competition throughout the coming week. The greatest Kentucky State Fair Horse Show, with some of the finest show horses in the nation, will officially open Monday Sept. 8 with performance to be held at 1:00 P. M. and 7:30 P. M. daily.

With every available inch of space reserved, the M&M Building is the Women's Department, back in its pre-war size and quality, a well rounded horticulture exhibit, Kentucky County Exhibits featuring natural, industrial and agriculture resources of Kentucky Counties, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's giant exhibit which is being shown in Kentucky for the first time, a large display of household appliances and many others of special interest.

For the first time in Fair history, an exhibit of various types of aircraft is being presented. Models of many familiar planes line the roadways through the Fairgrounds and may well be considered one of the most interesting features of this year's Fair.

After the successful DDT experiments which have been held at other State Fairs, the Fair Management last week had the Fairgrounds sprayed from gate to gate in an effort to prevent fly infestation. Other State Fairs have reported that after this treatment the number of insects was negligible.

Advisory Board To Hold Meeting

The Ohio Valley Transportation Advisory Board will hold its quarterly meeting at Charleston, West Virginia, September 9th and 10th. This will be the first time the Board has met in the West Virginia Capital.

Shippers from Kentucky, parts of Indiana, Ohio, and West Virginia will visit this important center of industry in the Kanawha Valley which is the heart of the coal country. Coal is the state's main export and is handled in the territory of this Board.

Committees will meet in the Daniel Boone Hotel on the 9th and the general session will be held in the auditorium of the Shrine Motel on the morning of the 10th.

The luncheon at noon of the 10th in the hotel will be addressed by the new Hope, River Company of Mount Hope, West Virginia. Its subject will be "Cabbage and Kings." Governor Clarence W. Meadows will welcome the luncheon guests. The luncheon is cosponsored by the Charleston Chamber of Commerce and the Kanawha Valley Transportation Club.

The Wednesday morning meeting will hear reports of the various committees, including the important commodity committee reports which forecast the business conditions in the territory for the fourth quarter of 1947. R. L. Sibley, manager of the Monsanto Chemical Co., of Nitro, West Virginia, will discuss the great chemical industries of the Kanawha Valley. C. R. Megee, vice chairman of the Car Service Division of the Association of American Railroads, Washington D. C., will report on general transportation conditions.

S. C. Higgins, secretary-traffic manager of the New River Coal Operators' Association, Mount Hope, West Virginia, is general chairman of the board and will preside over the general session. This session and the luncheon are open to the public.

This Board is one of their kind in the United States. They are made up of shippers who work in co-operation with the railroads toward a more efficient movement of the commodities shipped by freight. They have been in operation since 1924, and their work has contributed greatly to the more effective utilization of our transportation facilities.

Two Thousand Factories For Kentucky

By Thomas Graham

(Second District Bar Association Meeting—Owensboro, Kentucky, August 13, 1947)

The citizens of Kentucky have always been proud of the history of this great Commonwealth. We have, however, been prone to look at Kentucky in "Retrospect" instead of "Prospect". From an economic standpoint Kentucky has more undeveloped resources than any state east of the Mississippi River. Water is one great problem of industry and agriculture in many places, such as California and Texas. Kentucky with its "awful" weather is not running out of water or coal and its soil productivity is on the increase rather than decrease. We will not grow as fast as other sections, but to quote, Hanna in Chicago Daily News, we are likely to "stay grown" from this point on. This is an investment factor of prime importance.

I have just re-read Jesse Stuart's poem "Kentucky is My Land." Many groups be-moaning the retarded economic development educational program and financial position of Kentucky's citizens should read over this poem before writing reports only of a critical nature.

We need small business to supplement our agrarian economy all over the state. We need local ownership and interest in our industries and assets. Absentee ownership of industries, especially in Eastern Kentucky, and monopolistic practices have been just as much a deterrent to our development as has the unfriendly basic political philosophy against business indoctrinated in our 1892 Constitution by men who were afraid of the future and who did not believe in and were not friendly to business and financial progress. We must solve our own problems, restore the processes of local self-government and turn away from the myth of solution of all our problems by Federal Power, Federal Money and Federal Bureaucracy.

We do not want a state or county of big business, although we realize some industries inherently require large amounts of capital and must be large enterprises. There is no better way to socialize or communize a nation than to let our country or our State become a country or state of big business. These groups and big business have evinced a strange friendliness and the easiest road to socialism and communism is through just these large units of industry.

Our problem in Kentucky is to win the next ten years to bring in and finance 2,000 factories, the smaller the industrial units the better, so as to restore our State to its proud economic position of 1900 when we were first industrially of the 13 states in the South.

Helping and working on this problem we have had or are having.

Kentucky Post War Planning Commission

ing Commission Kentucky Chamber of Commerce

Public Development, and many others.

In passing only 4 states in the Union do not have some kind of State Industrial or Development Commission—one being ours.

For the first time, the principal candidates for Governor on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, have come out sponsoring a program of proper tax revision economic planning and industrial development for the State.

I quote from a speech by the Congressman from your own Second District, the Honorable Earle C. Clements:

"The need for new industry in Kentucky is very urgent. The state needs the money to pay the bills for the people and revenue for the state government, with which to accomplish the aims and goals that are desired. When Kentucky has been accorded a low rank among the states, it has been on the basis of expenditures per capita or some other basis which has been caused by the lack of sources of revenue equal to those of some other states. Income, of course must provide the sources of taxation either directly or indirectly. Taxation comes from income. Income comes from employment. Employment comes from industry."

"There is now an increasing exodus of industry from the highly industrialized East. An alert state administration can do much to bring Kentucky new industry by fair treatment, by equitable tax laws, and by many cooperative steps."

"As important as obtaining new industry is the retention of those successful and tax-paying industries that are now a part of our state. They should be encouraged to expand and to make further investment within the confines of this Commonwealth. A political and economic climate that will invite new industry and sustain and advance those enterprises now developing the state will mean eventually a larger state budget from which to provide better schools, improved services of government for all citizens, a reduced burden upon the individual taxpayer and more of the things that all of us want; Kentucky to have."

Every source of credit must be mobilized, private and public. Industries need working capital and factories, the financing of which are first the responsibility and prerogative of private capital, banks, insurance companies, investment dealers and individual investors. Many plans have been brought into the State through private financing of local investors and bank purchasing stock or bonds, or both, to finance the capital improvements. We have underwritten this type of financing in various cities of the State and all so far have been financially successful and a great economic asset to the local community.

When private financing is unavailable, plans have been developed after long study to partially solve this problem. Kentucky was the pioneer state in revenue self-liquidating bond financing and this vehicle has been called on again for this most laudable purpose.

Section 58.04—This Act was designed for the creation of public projects by various political subdivisions of the State to do the financing where economically sound and in the public interest by the use of Revenue bonds. This Act can be used by cities, counties and the State itself. Under this Act industrial financing for building purposes can be effected and it is not necessary for the companies involved specially in these days of high prices, to use available working capital for brick and mortar.

Fifty years ago the most important industry in the west the lumber industry, over a billion feet of lumber being manufactured each year. Today this industry has fallen to 10 per cent of this amount, and the result has been a large reduction in the industrial payroll index. The reforestation program advocated by the members of the Jefferson Forest Commission could go a long way toward restoring this vital industry—the only natural asset which can be restored. Revenue bonds under that Act can be used for this purpose. Also, this Act can be used for financing the State Park Hotel System, and for many other necessary public improvements. The next administration should not use the State surplus for ephemeral purposes, but spent ten million to develop the State Park system and like amounts for other capital improvements of a permanent nature. can be financed under Chapter 58 also by the issuance of Revenue Bonds.

In the past two years the State of Mississippi has added 121 new factories and 46 of these have been built by Mississippi capital. In the last two and a half years Georgia has added 956 new industries.

The trend in Kentucky is all toward the proper development of our future. The support of Government is important, but much more important is for Kentucky capital to be invested in Kentucky, both for private and public developments. If we have confidence in ourselves and our future, the program of 2,000 new factories, greatly increased private and public revenues, seems a goal attainable in the next ten years.

Chevrolet Trying To Keep New Cars Out Of Black Market

DETROIT — Chevrolet Motor Division and its dealer organization from coast to coast are waging a continuous and relentless campaign to prevent new cars from entering the so-called black markets of the used car lots, and are making a strenuous effort to see that the new car deliveries are in accordance with an equitable and orderly program based upon the dealer's prewar volume of business. T. H. Keating, general sales manager of Chevrolet, said here today.

It must be kept in mind that Chevrolet dealers are independent merchants and that the Chevrolet Motor Division is not in a position to regulate or interfere with the normal operation of their establishment. Nevertheless, the Chevrolet Motor Division has the moral obligation to protect the good name and public goodwill of Chevrolet, and co-operates closely with dealers in this respect," Mr. Keating continued.

"Chevrolet has 6,200 direct dealers in the United States and we are proud to state that to Chevrolet's knowledge, only an infinitesimal percentage of this vast organization violated the common sense rules of good business and good public relations recommended by the Chevrolet Motor Division and practised by the overwhelming majority of their fellow dealers."

"In order to control more closely possible abuses, Chevrolet has reinstated in its contract with dealers, the prewar 'bootleg' clause penalizing dealers who sell for resale Chevrolet equipment to anyone but Chevrolet dealers."

"Every complaint received by Chevrolet involving a dealer is taken seriously and our field organization and we are constantly advising and counseling the dealer organization to exercise the greatest vigilance in protecting the interests of the car-buying public. Chevrolet dealers have advertised the delivered price of less communities throughout the nation and with the co-operation of the Chevrolet Motor Division attempts to keep the public well informed regarding price differentials, deliveries and other factors of the situation."

"Unfortunately, however, the Chevrolet dealer does not exercise control over the vehicle after it has been sold, with the result that avaricious owners sometimes carelessly dispose of new vehicles in the 'used' car markets and pocket a quick profit."

"It is regrettable, but some of these new car sales have been made by customers who presented strong cases and pleaded with dealers for immediate delivery to alleviate hardships and other compelling causes."

"All in all, the situation is extremely difficult, but, as stated above, the Chevrolet Motor Division and its dealers resent vehemently the abuses over which they have no control and are making every effort to deliver Chevrolet cars and trucks in accordance with the best traditions of public service."

Big engines... long trains mean lower cost to you!

But union leaders want 'half-trains'—double crews!

Big locomotives are built to do a big job in the big country which is America—a big job in peacetime as in wartime. They are built to pull long trains.

Long freight trains can handle more goods at less cost—to you—than short trains.

Long trains mean fewer trains—fewer chances for accidents—fewer interruptions to traffic.

But a few railroad union leaders oppose long trains—among their current 44 demands for changes in rules is one limiting the length of freight trains to 57 average cars. Why do they demand this?

For "safety," they say. But is it? Government figures show definitely that long trains mean greater safety to railroad employees and public alike.

Then, if safety is not the real reason—what is the reason behind this demand? It is to make more jobs which are not needed—to get more pay! This "made work" would be sheer waste. Think of big, modern locomotives using only half their power.

For this waste, you—the public—would have to pay. Higher costs mean a lower standard of living for everybody. Nobody wants that!

Here's the record...

In the quarter century... 1921-1946...

Average length of freight trains has gone up... 39%

Average speed of freight trains has gone up... 39%

The rate of injuries to railroad employees has gone down... 60%

Average wages paid railroad workers have gone up... 84%

Price of railroad materials and supplies has gone up... 58%

Railroad taxes have gone up... 76%

But the average charge by railroads for hauling a ton of freight one mile has gone down... 23%

CAPITOL COMMENTS

There are certain things that are instilled in the heart of man, love and pride of home, and of his home State is one of them. For some years we have been prone to live on the glory of the past, talk of past greatness and dream of an older era that has a romantic aura of the golden antebellum days. In living in our past we have forgotten and neglected the present until we are beginning to stagnate, but we can now do something about this, a way is open for us and the love we have for Kentucky and the pride we have in it can be poured into constructive effort toward its progress.

The Kentucky State Chamber of Commerce has been organized and is doing a great job. It has and is getting new industries to come into the State and with them bring new payrolls and new jobs, opportunity for Kentuckians. A questionnaire has been sent to some organization in every community as to its industrial possibilities, potential labor, building sites and vacant buildings that factories might use, and most of the communities have answered but about forty cities have not, if you are interested in your town and its progress, get in touch with your local Chamber of Commerce and if you do not have one you can write the State Chamber of Commerce at Louisville, or get in touch with the editor of your paper who has the list of information needed to help your community.

I believe another thing that has retarded the progress of Kentucky is our antiquated Constitution. Kentucky competing with other states industrially is like a horse and buggy competing with the supercharged racers at the Indianapolis Speedway. I believe as most others do that we need a new Constitution and I have enough faith in the people of this State to know that if a Convention is called, we can get a good new one that will help not hinder the progress of this State. Have we so little faith in the people of this generation that we cannot trust them to inaugurate a new set of rules that will help them and the State?

On what we depend on a Constitution patched up from the "horse and buggy" days to be a barometer of our progress. This is no reflection on the horse and buggy or on the Constitution of that time, but who in this day of progress would want to depend on the horse and buggy alone for transportation, and who wants to be bound by laws that were appropriate for that time but have not only outlived their usefulness, but are a hindrance to the progress we want to make, and are obligated to make for future generations? The sections that are good and still applicable in our old Constitution can be put into a new streamlined one, and I believe that most of the people of the State think as I do.

The Republicans have announced a change in the opening date of their campaign, because of the city election in Lexington on September 20th. The date and place of the opening will be announced later.

Joe Lovett has been made Director of Publicity for the Democrats in their campaign this fall. Joe, a former newspaper man from Murray, a war veteran of both world wars, and an outstanding public relations man, has a large following and will do a swell job for the Democratic ticket.

Don't forget the State Fair now going on. The best one in years and well worth your attendance and support.

US 31 May Not Be Rebuilt In Hart Co.

Frankfort — Possibilities that efforts to re-build US 31 E through Hart County may be abandoned developed here today in a conference of engineers and attorneys in the Kentucky Department of Highways. Demands of property owners for rights of excessive and it was recommended that the money allocated for this road be spent on road improvement in sections where property is already available.

Attorneys for the department pointed out that eight teen parcels of land would require condemnation suits and that the total cost of rights-of-way on the 12.4 miles of road would cost in excess of $100,000.

The section of road is an extension of the new location of US 31-E, a federal primary project, south of Green River in Hart County. The present location is narrow and tortuous, considered a hazard to the heavy traffic developing along the route. The new road would go through the towns of Uno, Hardyville, Cammer, & Bear Wallow just beyond the Barren County line.

Title to $1,460,000 worth of machine tools, used in Louisville defense plants during the war, is being transferred to a joint Army-Navy machine tool program from inventories of the War Assets Administration.

Disposal of a six-acre crop of apples was the unusual task facing the War Assets Administration in Santa Rosa, Calif., recently. The apple crop was on a portion of the property surrounding a surplus airport near that city.

A building at the Kentucky Ordnance Plant, Paducah, Ky., together with all contained electric and steam generating equipment, has been sold to the War Assets Administration to the Atomic Energy Commission. Price was $315,440.

Turkey Crop Down This Year

Farmers are raising 34,667,000 turkeys this year, 16 percent less than last year according to the preliminary estimate of the Bureau of Agriculture Economics. This is the smallest crop since 1943, but is 5 percent above the 1939-43 average. Unfavorable price relationships, unusually large storage stocks at the end of last season, high feed costs, and the uncertainty of 1947 turkey prices for the heavy marketing season caused the sharp decrease in numbers this year. In 1946, prices broke sharply after Thanksgiving and did not recover. Heavy losses were difficult to move even under a price differential, in some cases, as high as 20 cents per pound. The decrease this year would have been even greater except that many breeders and hatcheries, unable to dispose of their eggs or poults, elected to grow them out themselves. This was particularly true in the Pacific Coast States. Producers' intentions on January 1 also pointed to a crop 16 percent below a year ago.

All States expect New Mexico, Georgia and Rhode Island show decreases in turkeys raised compared with a year ago. The West North Central States are raising 20 percent fewer turkeys than last year. All States in this region are down sharply with decreases ranging from 10 percent in North Dakota to 30 percent in South Dakota. Decreases in the Western States range from 13 percent in Arizona to 30 percent in Montana, with the whole region down 16 percent. The number of turkeys raised in 1947 compared with a year ago shows decreases for the South Atlantic States of 16 percent, South Central States 15 percent, East North States 11 percent and the North Atlantic States 8 percent.

The five leading turkey states in the order named are: California, Texas, Minnesota, Iowa and Oregon. These States which account for 44 percent of the turkeys being raised in 1947 are producing 16 percent fewer birds than last year. Decreases by States are California 15 percent, Texas 13 percent, Minnesota 17 percent, Iowa and Oregon 20 percent.

The 1947 season began with 20 percent fewer breeder hens than a year earlier. However, it soon became apparent that there would be an ample supply of hatching eggs to meet the reduced demand for poults. The hatching season started out dull and did not recover. The sharp jump in feed prices in March coupled with the uncertainty of turkey prices dampened the market for poults. Hatching was curtailed and a surplus of hatching eggs developed. Hatcheries reporting on poults showed a 20 percent decrease in poults hatched during the first 7 months of this year compared with the same month in 1946. Comments from turkey growers indicate that poult losses have been smaller than usual.

The heaviest reductions in turkeys this year were made by large producers. However, even in this group some growers reported a substantial increase in their flocks. Many growers went out of the turkey business entirely.

Early Marketings Expected Turkey marketings are expected to be earlier than usual and the proportion to be marketed before November is even larger than the record proportion during that period last year. If growers' intentions are realized, marketings in October and earlier will be the largest in 12 years of record. Growers expect to market 25.1 percent of their birds before November compared with 22.3 percent last year and 13.3 percent the 1941-45 average. In November this year growers expect to market 40.9 percent of their birds which compares with 36.7 percent marketed during the month in 1946. High feed prices and the drop in turkey prices late in 1946 are the main factors which influenced producers' intentions toward earlier marketing this year. However, there has been a fairly steady trend toward earlier marketings for the past 8 years because flocks of early birds are easier to raise, have smaller death losses and run less risk of early winter storm losses.

The actual marketing of the crop will depend to a considerable extent upon later developments. Feed costs are expected to continue high and will average higher this fall and winter than a year earlier. Even with a crop considerably smaller than last year, however, feed supplies will be adequate to raise birds to maturity. The relation of feed costs to turkey prices will be an important factor this year in the marketing of turkeys. Growers can be expected to market the birds as soon as they are in reasonably good finish to cut feed outlays. In 1946 actual marketings were somewhat later than intended. In 1945, 1943 and 1942, actual marketings were about the same as growers' intentions reported in August, but in 1944 and from 1938 to 1941 inclusive, they were somewhat later.

About 78 percent of the early birds, those marketed in October or earlier, are produced in the West North Central and Western States, where 43 percent and 24 percent respectively of the turkeys marketed fall in this class. About 80 percent of the turkeys produced in the West North Central States are expected to be marketed before December. For the country as a whole about 34 percent of the turkeys are expected to be marketed in December or later.

Doctor Warns About Small Children Being Close To Fires

Inflamable wearing apparel may cost the life of a loved one.

"Be careful what you wear and when you wear it," Dr. W. E. Coughlin, Ph. D. Director of the Good Housekeeping Textile Laboratory warns in an article in the September issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. "All ordinary fabrics will burn. Most of them burn rather slowly, so the flame can be extinguished or the garment removed before any great harm is done."

"On the other hand some fabrics ignite easily and flame furiously because of their fibres or construction, or a combination of these factors. You should learn to recognize these fabrics and garments made from them, so you can be careful when you are wearing them."

Important advice on what to wear is proffered by Dr. Coughlin who states in part; "Your chance of becoming a human torch are slim if you exercise ordinary care and common sense in wearing highly flammable garments. Don't for example, attempt to save a few minutes by slipping down to prepare breakfast in your dressing gown. The long, loose, flowing sleeves and dangling sashes of these garments and the sheer, napped, or pile fabrics from which they are made invite disaster when you are using your range. Also be careful how you light cigarettes when you are wearing a veil or dressing gown, and never stand close to an open fire. The same advice goes for flannel nightgowns and robes, and long-napped materials."

Hospital records show that most injuries to small children from burned clothing come from fabrics that ordinarily are not considered to be dangerously inflammable. The panic-stricken child's inability to extinguish the flame and to remove the burning garment usually is the reason. The answer here is keeping a watchful eye on very small children and teaching older ones to understand and avoid the hazards of playing with matches and bonfires. Children should be warned about the sheer dresses and veils worn on occasions such as church ceremonies, especially when lighted candles are carried or are standing nearby."

The $37,000,000 butadiene plant near Louisville is to be sold piecemeal by the War Assets Administration.

U. K. Gets Journal

A file of the Jernamane, Journal Nicholasville, for the period 1899-1926 is being lent to the University of Kentucky library. The agreement with the Journal is similar to agreements with other Kentucky newspapers which have placed their files in the library for historical study.

Nineteen large and small buildings are being moved piece-by-piece to the University of Kentucky campus to help relieve crowded conditions this fall when more than 7,000 students are expected to be enrolled.

The University will pay only for site preparation, utilities, and landscaping. Given to the University, the frame structures are being brought to the campus, erected and equipped by the Federal Works Agency at a cost to the federal government of about $600,000.

Included are a large service building, auxiliary cafeteria, chemistry laboratory classroom building, engineering and shop building, office and classroom building and a dramatics and speech building to replace the Fine Arts Center which was destroyed by fire last winter.

Commenting on the building program, President H. L. Donovan said: "Some of our friends have worried greatly over our ruining our beautiful lawn cutting our stately trees and disgracing our campus with these temporary and unsightly buildings. I too, disliked to see this beauty despoiled but we had to choose between keeping our campus lovely and providing housing and classrooms for veterans and other students. We chose the latter course. That is my answer to these critics."

The temporary buildings will be replaced by permanent ones as soon as possible.

THE WORLD'S FIRST "CANCER MOBILE"

The Reverend John A. Floersch, Archbishop of the Diocese of Kentucky, dedicates the world's first Cancer Mobile Unit at a Presentation held at St. Joseph's Infirmary.

Inside the world's first "Cancer Mobile" Joyce Garabold, Nurse's Aide, examines a posed patient assisted by Aide Helen Thompson.

Mrs. T. C. Carroll, Commander, Kentucky Division, American Cancer Society, sits in the driver's seat of the world's first mobile cancer unit and accepts the ignition keys from Martha O'Brien, President, Junior League of Louisville, Inc. The Junior League of Louisville presented the unit to the Kentucky Division, American Cancer Society.

Cancer Clinics Made Possible Throughout State

The world's first "Cancer Mobile" was presented to the Kentucky Division of the American Cancer Society at Kentucky's first Cancer Symposium, held recently at St. Joseph's Infirmary in Louisville, Kentucky.

The mobile unit has diagnostic equipment that includes an X-ray machine. It also has a dressing room, laboratory, emergency lighting system and facilities for the developing of X-ray film.

The compact mobile unit was specially built on a 2-ton, cab-over-engine Dodge job. Rated truck chassis with a 750-inch wheel base. The entire unit is 17 feet long and has a gross weight of 15,500 pounds. It was purchased through the Bureau of Cancer, Louisville, Kentucky at a cost of $18,300, by the Junior League of Louisville, Inc., as a gift to the Kentucky Division of the American Cancer Society.

The Cancer Mobile will travel throughout the state beginning with Letcher County and then to other counties inviting its service through their medical societies. It will be used for detection and diagnostic cancer primarily for indigent cancer cases. However, according to the American Cancer Society, if the cooperating county medical society so desires, members of the medical profession may refer private cases for group diagnosis. Dr. Ellis Duncan, Louisville surgeon, aided by volunteer doctors from each county, will hold free cancer clinics.

The Cancer Mobile was presented by Miss Martha O'Brien, president of the Junior League, and was dedicated by the Reverend John A. Floersch, Archbishop of the Diocese of Kentucky.

It was made by Ellis Duncan, M. D., Director, Cancer Mobile, 729 Thomas Building, Louisville, Kentucky.
